

S.F.T.W.C.L.

xens

Look at the stars how they shine tonight.
Sometimes I wish I could live that high.

There the world would always seem so small,
there I wouldn't even care at all.

For those who can love.
All those who can love.
Though you'd never see me cry,
when the rain falls from the sky.

Is for those who can love.
But sometimes caring just feels so rough.
If one day I live on Mars,
will they forget who they are?

Some days I'm here,
but most of them I'm gone.
Some lives of the play just feel so wrong.
I wish we could change what we learn from the past.

So I could still trust you with my love,
I could still hold on in the arms.

Of those who can love (Who can love).
All those who can love (Who can love).
Know that life most of the times,
is not fair and that's not right.

But if you can love,
one day you'll turn to a dove.
And you'll get to fly so high,
so come and meet me in the sky.

Of those who can love. (They shine)
All those who can love. (Neon lights they shine)
Though you'd never see me cry, (Neon lights they shine)
when the rain falls from the sky.

Is for those who can love. (They shine) (Hey)
But sometimes caring just feels so rough. (Neon lights they shine) (Say hey)
If one day I live on Mars, (Neon lights they shine) (Can you hold me, am I lonely?)
will they forget who they are? (In this underworld, underworld)

Is for those who can love. (They shine) (Hey)
All those who can love. (Neon lights they shine) (Say hey) I'll always trust you with blind eyes, (Neon lights they shine) (Can you hold me, am I lonely?)
I'll always hold on in the arms. (In this underworld, underworld)

Of those who can love.